There Were Nine on the Force Fifty Years Ago Besides An tion of Croquet.

There will be scattered showers and thunder storms within the next 24 hours in the middle Atlantic states. The indications are that the weather will be generally fair Saturday and Sunday east of the Mississippi river, although widely scattered showers are probable in the middle Atlantic states. No important temperature changes are indicated for the eastern half of the country during the next 48 hours. The winds along the north Atlantic will be light to moderate variable, mostly south and southwest. Middle Atlantic, light to moderate variable. Fifty years ago the editor of The Bulletin wrote a eulogy on croquet. He thought it was the best game ever for ladies and gentlemen, a game of skill, conservation, dignified, esthetic, almost. Times have changed. He didn't foresee females siashing balls on tennis courts and speeding about in motor cars. Sport and social customs have evolved some in haif a century. The country had begun to settle down after the war, and growth started in anew. There were the indications of a boom at Stonington, and New London people took time to worry about their whaling vessels in northern seas. New England and Eastern New York: Cloudy Saturday; Sunday prob-ably fair. Observations in Norwich.

The following records, reported from Sevin's pharmacy, show the changes in temperature and the barometric changes Friday:

> Five Croquet Sets in Norwich. July 24.—Croquet—this delightful game at last seems to be coming into vogue in Norwich, which, generally quick to adopt anything new, has been weefully behind in this instance. Last immer there were two sets of croque appearents in Norwich; this year w know of five, but strange to say, but one of them is in the city limits, all the others being up town. This should not be the case, for no more healthy or inspiring game for both sexes ex-

For our women the game is just the thing, giving them physical exercise that is not too violent, while it gives them the opportunity to contrast their pretty dresses with the greensward, while—dare we say it—if they wear neat little slippers on neat little feet, opportunities are afforded to let it be known when crouqueting to "Hang early" the ball of the opposing party.

The new police ordinance, adopted by the common council, provides for a force of a chief, one captain, one lieutenant, seven policemen and six supernumerary policemen. The annual pay of the captain is fixed at $750, the lieutenant at $700 and police $650, while supernumeraries will receive $2 A pile of excelsior, bags and other rubbish was found burning by Sergeant Kane in the cellar of a house on Sixth street early Friday morning. In fact, it may be said that lobster thieving has become quite common and it is the determination of the commission to suppress it. It quite frequently happens that the owners of fisheries will go to their pots expecting a large catch but find only a commaratively small number of lobsters, indicating that thieves had been at the pots before the owners. The thieving is done at night, usually. When it is reported to the superintendent of fish and some Lohn M. Crambion that ported to the superintendent of fish and game, John M. Another matter relating to lobster fisheries which is causing the fish and game commission a great deal of trouble is the practice of catching chicken lobsters.

The law forbids the catching of lobsters under a certain size, and imposed what the late Judge Arthur F. Eggleston would term "a right smart pevalty" on the violators of the statute. The epicurian taste of some persons is primarily responsible for the catching of chicken lobsters. The young or undersized lobsters are considered a great delicacy and big prices are paid for them. The commission has also successfully prosecuted persons for Zatching these small lobsters, and if there are not more prosecutions it will be because the practice of catching the lobsters has been abandoned. There is hardly anything more detrimental to the development of the lobster industry than the catching of young lobsters. The contract for the printing of the fish and game laws of the state has been awarded to the Journal Publishing company of Meriden.
